1. Overview

Lowe's provides packaging templates (Adobe Illustrator files) as a starting point for graphic artists to develop packaging layouts. These templates include the general format, logos, color palette, fonts, etc. needed to create the final branded packaging.

Lowe's also provides Brand Packaging Guidelines for each of its proprietary brands. The Brand Packaging Guidelines are a valuable reference when designing packaging and contain information including font usage, icon usage, thumbnails of templates and more.

By nature, templates are not product specific; you must customize them for each item you produce.

2. Packaging

a. What Customizations Are Required On The Templates?

Vendors should update packaging templates with product specific copy in English, French Canadian, and Latin American Spanish (unless otherwise noted by your Lowe's merchant). Vendors should use approved brand copy templates to develop SKU packaging copy.

Vendors should also customize templates with the following product specific information:

- UPC Codes
- Lowe's item number
- Vendor model number
- Product specific photography
- Distribution information (Vendor Company Name, Address, and Country of Origin)
- Any other brand specific information shown on the packaging templates
- Product warnings, icons, etc.

Placement and style for the above information is identified in the provided templates.

6. I've downloaded the packaging templates, but I can't open the files. What do I do?

Packaging template art files are saved as Adobe Illustrator CS2 files. Users must have at least Adobe Illustrator CS2 to open the template files. For users without Adobe Illustrator CS2, you can view thumbnails of the templates in the brand packaging guidelines for your particular brand.

7. Which template do I use?

Lowe's has created a variety of packaging templates for each of its proprietary brands. If none of the templates are an exact match for the type of packaging you require, please use the closest match. If you have questions as to which template is most appropriate for your product, please e-mail lowesbrandexchange@lowes.com and we will assist you.

8. How do I create packaging if I don't have Adobe Illustrator?

Lowe's requires that all packaging for our proprietary brands be created in Adobe Illustrator using our packaging templates. Vendors without Adobe Illustrator have three options.

1. Purchase Adobe Illustrator
2. Contract out the packaging design to an outside agency
3. Request that Lowe's handles the production of your packaging
